Education

While current research evidence supports the concept of comprehensive guidance and counseling programs and active, involved school counselors, it is important to understand that the profession is only at the very beginning of seeing the benefits of organized and fully implemented guidance and counseling programs in schools. The Committee on Measurement and Guidance, formerly the Central Committee on Personnel Methods, was founded in 1936. With this in view for the first time the movement for the national system of education was organized in Bengal and the lead was taken by Sir Goorudas Banerjee, Rashbehari Ghosh and Rabindra Nath Tagore.
