Current Challenges Facing the Future of Secondary Education and Transition Services

Textual Records: Sample of reports received, 1951. In addition to the standard high school diploma, options now include special education diplomas, certificates of completion, occupational diplomas, and others.

Robbins Report (1963)

As our communities become more diverse in culture, race, ethnicity, and religious heritage, we are challenged to involve families whose primary language is not English, who are recent immigrants with no formal school experience, families in poverty and low socioeconomic status, and those who have had negative school experiences. It is based upon four basic principles: stronger accountability for results, increased flexibility and control, expanded options for parents, and an emphasis on teaching methods that have been proven to work. From this federal legislation, regulations were established requiring state and local education agencies specifically to address the school and postschool transition service needs of students with disabilities.

Records of the office of Education

Studebaker's correspondence with the Advisory Committee on Education, drafts of a vocational education statement by the Vocational Education Division, and various studies, 1935-39.

Office of the Commissioner

Function transferred to the Department of Education by the Department of Education Organization Act 93 Stat. Submitted report to President and Congress, February 1938. General Records of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, RG 235.

Current Challenges Facing the Future of Secondary Education and Transition Services

Influence of State Priorities and Goals. This law established a new framework for the federal government to provide assistance to states for the reform of educational programs. Large numbers of students, however, are not faring well on these assessments.
