Crop ecologic survey in West Africa : (Liberia, Ivory Coast, Ghana, Togo, Dahomey, Nigeria) / Prepared by J. Papadakis

Tropical Africa is about 18% of the world total covering 20 million km². We look at 35 years of data 1982-2016 over West Africa and identify the primary growing season for the region, then compare the four variables above during this prime season. These exert a large influence on the local weather and climate, mainly due to their impact on radiation, the surface energy balance and thus the diurnal cycle of the atmospheric boundary layer.

In April 1992, countries with some of the largest surviving tropical rain forests banned a rainforest protection plan proposed by the British government. Compared to reference water extracts upstream and distal to the disposal well, samples collected adjacent and downstream exhibited considerably higher antagonist activity for the estrogen, androgen, progesterone, glucocorticoid and thyroid hormone receptors. .
