Developmental peace in east Asia and its implications for the Indo

It is not a posture conducive to persistent hypercompetition with China or, in extremis, a cold-start escalation to armed conflict that might emerge from any one of myriad faultlines pitting China against the United States and its partners in the Indo-Pacific Taiwan, South and East China Seas, etc.

The Limits of Good Strategy: The United States in the Asia Pacific in 2018

But Nakasone has not been deterred. The 2021 NDAA is focussed on China. A singular focus on only one of our security interests will distort U.

Under Secretary of Defense for Policy > ASDforAsianandPacificSecurityAffairs

However, it has criticized publicly only the U. However, we argue that the most appropriate, effective, and durable change can only occur within the context of a more integrated and unified Joint Force concept for theater competition and conflict.

US National Defence Authorisation Act 2021's implications on Indo

With Malaysia, we are deepening our security and defense cooperation, supporting its efforts in areas such as combatting trafficking in persons, counterterrorism, and maritime piracy. The Covid-19 pandemic—and recently, access to new vaccines—have also emerged as major geopolitical issues for many states in Asia.

The US Is Out of Position in the Indo

Both Jakarta and Washington should figure out how to revitalise the defence relationship and ensure that this momentum continues into other areas within the Strategic Partnership. Derek Grossman is a senior defense analyst at the nonprofit, nonpartisan RAND Corporation.
