By 1944 the Ka-Bar knife was issued to virtually any Marine in the combat branches who desired one, and was in use by Marine Corps close combat instructors for training new recruits. After their first combat, many Marines in the 2nd Raider Battalion exchanged their Raider stilettos for No.

Ka

Besides use as a fighting knife, the Ka-Bar has proved useful as a utility knife, for opening , digging , and cutting wood, roots, wire, and cable. A final impetus came from the War Department, which had determined the need for a new multipurpose knife capable of fulfilling the roles of both a fighting and a utility knife, while at the same time conserving strategic metal resources.

Ka

Working with Union Cutlery, USMC Colonel John M. The Marine Corps issued Ka-Bar fighting utility knife throughout Marine forces, with early deliveries going primarily to elite formations.
