Thus did the men of distinction and prestige become accustomed to this type of writing and study.

Surat Al Qiyamah Arab, Latin & Terjemah Bahasa Indonesia

He, may Allah have mercy on his soul, was of the view that an author should not exert his effort and exhaust himself in dealing with the branches of modern or ancient knowledge without allotting a portion of such effort or exertion to study their personalities and those of their offspring and followers who were hanged, jailed, or exiled to distant lands and who died while remaining firm in adhering to the lofty principles and to the true faith. I find myself at this juncture reluctant to discuss the branches of knowledge about which they wrote or the arts they categorized according to queries, or the precious treasures for whose safeguarding they dedicated themselves.

Al

Researchers' methods depend on clarity, elucidation, argumentation, and glaring evidence. His action would be regarded as self-demeaning, undermining his status and prestige. Their foes envied them while those who despised and hated them harboured a great deal of grudge against them.

Read, for example, this one: You only remind me of the lions in their den.

Abū Mūsā al

His belief in them and in their special status with Allah often prompted him to seek their intercession to remove his affliction. His manuscript,

Nawadir al-Athar, contains poems delivered by poets who attended their merry occasions. Yet we have to remove the curtain from what was hidden and veiled.

Surat Al Qiyamah Arab, Latin & Terjemah Bahasa Indonesia

He, may Allah have mercy on him, used to talk about such wishes desired for him by religious authorities, and he used to justify his having rejected their offers by saying that once the means of ease and luxury were available, one would not be able to control his worldly desires, and he might find himself involved in other things. This requires him to read the texts in their various connotations together with what critics and narrators have commented about them as well as a review of the personalities of their authors.

Abū Mūsā al

His main concern was to acquire more and more knowledge and satisfy himself with its treasures of minute legacies. I am inclined to think that he assisted many contemporary researchers in Najaf who wrote famous books, and he may have provided them with entire chapters for their books. .
