Anthony Comstock's Laws

Sanger's Crusade These laws remained unchallenged until birth-control advocate Margaret Sanger made it her mission to challenge the Comstock Act. This collection contains sermons written by Haney, as well as a few of his other writings and some ministerial material. Thirty states had statutes on the books prohibiting or restricting the sale and advertisement of contraception.

Collection: Haney, Robert W. Papers, 1953

Born in rural Connecticut in 1844, Comstock served in the infantry during the Civil War, then moved to New York City and found work as a salesman. But by far the most restrictive state of all was Connecticut, where the act of using birth control was even prohibited by law.

Collection: Haney, Robert W. Papers, 1953

Public Support for Comstock Laws This statute was the first of its kind in the Western world, but at the time, the American public did not pay much attention to the new law.

Collection: Haney, Robert W. Papers, 1953

Haney served the First and Second Church in Boston 1960-1981 and the Theodore Parker Unitarian Church in West Roxbury, Massachusetts from 1981 until his retirement in 2001, when he was named Minister Emeritus. The ministerial materials contain thank you notes, funeral cards, wedding invitations, clippings, and one photograph of Haney baptizing a child. The case that grew out of her arrest resulted in the 1918 Crane decision, which allowed women to use birth control for therapeutic purposes.
