France: education unions extremely worried for the quality of education public services

The results of the first test of the representativeness of unions under these rules were announced in March 2013, and all five of the existing nationally representative union confederations cleared the 8% hurdle. This option is limited to six working days. If no substitution agreements have been concluded, employees will retain the same salary they were paid during the last 12 months for the working time provided by their employment contract.

France: New assessment of the representativeness of the social

It is estimated that 30 percent of households in the area are unable to afford council housing.

Trade Unions and Politics in French West Africa during the Fourth Republic on JSTOR

The case will thus be heard twice at first-instance level. The Movement of French Enterprises Medef has been named as the most representative employer organisation. More than two fifths of the persons interviewed were working with computers 43%.

France: New assessment of the representativeness of the social

According to the views expressed by business and by governments at the conference, in order to bridge the digital divide and to create digital opportunities, it was necessary to enhance access for all to information technology and the internet, building on on-going market infrastructure development. Week 5: Lecture: The decline of Revolutionary Syndicalism and Division in the Labour Movement Seminar: To what extent does the 1914 — 1921 period represent a turning point for the labour movement? Week 9: Lecture: Labour and Politics: an exclusionary post-war settlement? Its composition, functioning and role may be negotiated within each company and determined by a collective agreement.

France: Sarkozy government introduces law restricting right to strike

Part two takes stock of the current Review and indicates where pressure from affiliates could best yield results. Follow-up work in both these areas can only be relevant if it meets the needs and aspirations of working families.
