Wang Xizhi

In August 1952, the Ministry of Culture issued a nation-wide 'notification' tongzhi, designed to recover items from the Palace Museum's original collection still circulating among the Chinese public.

Bamboo, Rocks and Lonely Orchids

While some intellectuals would disavow the past in all its manifestations, most were educated in the traditional manner. Lanting is today a suburb to Shaoxing, situated some 10 kilometers southwest of the center of Yuecheng District, the site of the Former Residence of Wang Xizhi. Zheng is also the most acclaimed among the eight masters, being well versed in poetry, calligraphy and painting, and was best known for his bamboos in ink.

Pinyin Dictionary

The Jiaguwen and Jinwen scripts were used by Chinese calligraphers during the era of until 220 BCE, when the Emperor Qin Shi Huang ordered the development of a new unified script known as Dazhuan. Note: 1, It is a metaphor for the concept that true genius is not born without patronage. The father of the great grand grandfather Hedong Gong 1 and the great grand father Weiguo Gong 2 collected famous paintings.

He immediately acted to ensure that the 10,000 or so remaining crates of antiquities temporarily stored in the Palace Museum's Nanjing branch be returned to Beijing.

The picture is a blend of reality and fantasy. The materials appearing on the Site could include technical, typographical or photographic errors. The stylistic elements of all those calligraphers before him who were in one way or another influenced by the Wang father and son come together in one perfectly blended organic whole through the rich, rounded application of the tip, the eloquence in rhythm and the alternating fat and slender strokes.
