The pencils are well-made and the lead is quite strong and easy to sharpen to whatever point you need with a sharpener.

Caran d'Ache Aquarelle Museum Watercolor Pencils Review

Color depth is impressive as well as the ability to blend both dry and especially wet. This is great for those people who like to focus primarily on certain settings or locations in their works. Our favorite colors are the yellows and green as they seem to pop off the page but the darker colors are great in their own right.

Caran d'Ache Aquarelle Museum Watercolor Pencils Review

He was one of the artists along with Gordon Matta Clark, Rafi Ferrer, Barry Le Va, Jeffery Lew, Bill Bollinger, and Alan Saret who organized the first exhibition of the legendary gallery 112 Greene Street Workshop in SoHo in October 1970. While you will have much more dramatic blending with the inclusion of water or another type of solvent, even when dry they perform quite well.
