

Saitō Mokichi to igaku

Misuzu Shobō - Saitō Mokichi / Fujioka Takeo hen

Description: -

-

Poets, Japanese -- Biography

Psychiatrists -- Japan -- Biography

Saitō, Mokichi, -- 1882-1953 Saitō Mokichi to igaku

-Saitō Mokichi to igaku

Notes: Includes index.

This edition was published in 1978

Filesize: 69.35 MB

Tags: #Saitō #Mokichi #shū

Mokichi Saitō

He also wrote philological essays on of and of.

Mokichi Saito (February 14, 1882 — February 25, 1952), Japanese psychiatrist, writer, poet

Thus Saitō is the family name, Mokichi the first name. By using this website you agree to the and the policy.

Mokichi Saito (February 14, 1882 — February 25, 1952), Japanese psychiatrist, writer, poet

Mokichi studied tanka under , a disciple of Masaoka Shiki and leader, after his master's death, of the Negishi Tanka Society; Sachio also edited the society's official journal Ashibi. A memorial room for Saitō's nephew has also been set up here. Saitō's eldest son was the psychiatrist and essayist 1916-2006 , his second son the psychiatrist and poet 1927-2011.

Saitō Mokichi

Japanese name: As is common in Japan, the family name comes before the first name in this article. . Among other things, the exhibition space on the ground floor was enlarged.

Saitō Mokichi zenshū. = 齋藤茂吉全集.

In 2003, on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of Saitō's death, the equipment was renewed and a computer system was purchased. At the beginning, the museum was run by the city administration. He attended Medical School and, upon graduation in 1911, joined the staff of Sugamo Hospital where he began his study of psychiatry.

Saitō Mokichi Kinenkan

Career He later directed Aoyama Hospital, a psychiatric facility. Mokichi's career as a poet spanned almost 50 years.

Related Books

- Proceedings at a public meeting held at the London tavern - on the 1st December, 1858 ... the lord m
- Afrodita barroca - fragmentos para el estudio de una sensibilidad de la cultura, Popayán, siglos XVI
- Help Age Concern warm up winter
- Lovagok és lovagrendek
- PRECIS - an annotated bibliography, 1969-1977