Group Work

Facilitation in his view is a intervention. Process oriented guided inquiry learning.

Cooperative Learning: Teaching Strategy (Grades K

It may be time for a short break or a change in focus.

Group Learning

The group should try to come to an agreement that makes sense to everyone. However, they do need to be invited to think about any implications for themselves and their lives.

Discovering why study groups are more effective

They view one another not as competitors which is common within a typically individualistic educational system but as collaborators. Speaking in front of the whole class can be scary, and combined with the tension of speaking to the teacher, the situation can be downright terrifying to students.
