Drugs in adolescent worlds : burnouts to straights / Barry Glassner and Julia Loughlin

The AAP recommends screening for substance use in children, starting at 9 years of age. In this social worlds analysis, adolescents' own concerns with boredom, depression, social identity, friendship, access to drugs, self-control and folk pharmacology replace the professionals' focus on deviant behaviour. Teen Substance Use & Risks

The American Academy of Pediatrics AAP, through a cooperative agreement with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention CDC, developed a guide for implementing substance use screening in pediatric practices to help pediatricians address substance use concerns. This book provides a new perspective which is sociological rather than epidemiological, understanding patterns of drug-taking in the context of ordinary social interaction.

In this social worlds analysis, adolescents' own concerns with boredom, depression, social identity, friendship, access to drugs, self-control and folk pharmacology replace the professionals' focus on deviant behaviour. Both drug-taking and drug-abstaining are analysed as decisions made within social worlds made up of peers and family.
