Intensive Therapeutics

Critical Elements for Success The number of stakeholders in the guidelines for therapeutic hypothermia has increased from 3 clinical champions 2 neuroscience clinical specialists and a neurologist to a highly effective interprofessional care delivery team dedicated to optimizing therapeutic hypothermia. Pneumonia is a leading cause of death in both infant and elderly populations.

Intensive Therapeutic Care

Considering the high incidence of bacterial infection for critically ill patients with COVID-19, it is essential to test the kinetics of procalcitonin PCT and C-reaction protein CRP in COVID-19 patients for timely diagnosis and intervention of bacterial infection.

therapeutics

Bernard et al and the Hypothermia After Cardiac Arrest Study Group corroborated positive outcomes in patients with ventricular fibrillation.

HeelZup

For antibacterials that are administered via continuous infusion, a sample at any given time during administration can be used. This is due to the fact that those patients were seen as less demanding, as they were unable to express their needs and were not irritable or agitated.

Intensive Therapeutic Care

Nurses are interacting with a human who needs care and respect and the best approach to achieve this goal is effective communication.

Critical Care

Surviving Sepsis Campaign: international guidelines for management of sepsis and septic shock: 2016. Regenthal R, Krueger M, Koepfel C, Preiss R.
