War and Famine Coming to America ~ by Mary Adger

When Wilkes was arrested he gave Churchill a timely hint to retire to the country for a time, the publisher, Kearsley, having stated that he received part of the profits from the paper. No flow'rs embalm'd the air, but one white rose, Which, on the tenth of June, by instinct blows, By instinct blows at morn, and, when the shades Of drizzly eve prevail, by instinct fades.

The judgement would be an act of God withholding prophecy. Sooner shall herbage crown these barren rocks, Sooner shall fleeces clothe these ragged flocks, Sooner shall want seize shepherds of the south, And we forget to live from hand to mouth, Than Sawney, out of season, shall impart The songs of gladness with an aching heart.
