Back Matter : Policies for Growth : The Latin American Experience: Proceedings of a Conference held in Mangaratiba, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, March 16

Generally, exports have increased, although not at the same pace as imports, which have consisted, in an important proportion, of capital goods. We are partnering with government, industry and non-governmental organizations to inform policy making and business decisions, and advance public discourse on key transportation, energy and environmental issues. Lipton assumed the position of First Deputy Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund on September 1, 2011.

She is the incoming editor of the IMF Economic Review and on the Advisory Board of the Carnegie-NYU-Rochester Conference on Public Policy. At the GovLab, she directs better governance programs, including work with public institutions on public engagement in lawmaking CrowdLaw , expert-sourcing innovative solutions to hard problems Smarter Crowdsourcing , co-creation between cities and citizens City Challenges. That link has to do with the increases in productivity that should emerge from a more outward-oriented economy, a smaller and more efficient public sector, and spillovers of increased FDI.
