The ballet seemed so much more real. Due to lack of funds this Foundation had fallen into financial difficulties and the only asset it had was all the surviving ballet costumes and decors going back to the earliest production in 1909.

The Diaghilev Ballet

A gala evening in aid of the Royal Ballet School was organized, attended by Her Royal Highness Princess Margaret and a great success was made of the sale. After a few weeks guarding the exhibits in the galleries, I was asked if I would like to work on the sale of costumes and decors from the Diaghilev and de Basil ballets. This book is thoroughly recommended not only to balletomanes but to anyone interested in the cultural history of the twentieth century.
