The Government Accountability Office assists Congress in reviewing and monitoring the activities of government by conducting independent audits, investigations, and evaluations of federal programs. But I was left in the position of defending American opposition to the proposed reparations from Finland without any background, without knowing anything about Finland, without having been present at discussions at which this was decided. CRS reports are widely regarded as in depth, accurate, objective, and timely, but as a matter of policy they are not made available to members of the public by CRS, except in certain circumstances.
