The Vienna Settlement: Principles, Criticism and Holy Alliance

All Napoleon seemed to want was for Austria to remain neutral and the Tsar seemed prepared to accept that Austria would be prepared to ally with Russia if she had not been weakened by the recent serious defeats she had suffered. But in return Napoleon demanded 1 that Austria must appear to start the war and 2 that France must receive the districts of Nice and of Savoy.

Why did the Congress of Vienna fail to stop future European wars?

Unlike our President, the President of the Third Republic was little more than a figurehead. The difference went right up to the brink of war. Rome became the capital of the Kingdom of Italy.

Congress of Vienna

Balance was, more or less, restored to Europe, as even France came off fairly lightly and was not humiliated with enormous economic and military sanctions like Germany was after the First World War. Bismarck continued his able leadership.

Rise of nationalism in Europe

So he got Austria to join in a war against Denmark. Neither the Congress of Vienna nor Metternich, could kill it.

Napoleon had badly mutilated the political map of Europe. Then he decided to take one last chance to keep his crown and get what he wanted. Although these wars concerned chiefly Germany, Italy also profited from them.

Italy and Germany Become Unified nations

He succeeded in forming the Holy Alliance 1815 , based on monarchism and anti-secularism, and formed to combat any threat of revolution or republicanism. Maybe red shirts were easier to shoot at than green or gray, but for every bullet, they attracted a recruit from the ranks of the enemy. During the Middle-Ages, Italian cities led western Europe in trade and wealth, Italian painters, sculptors, writers and scientists were among the most brilliant of the Renaissance.

By What Steps did Italy Become Unified? Russian was given much of Poland and it was allowed to keep the Duchy of Finland, which it had seized from Sweden in 1809. Descended from the Junker, Prussia's aristocratic landowning class, Bismarck hated parliamentary democracy and championed the dominance of the monarchy and aristocracy.
