This is especially so where the applicant is not involved in the operation of the trust, and therefore is not able to prevent any sale or transfer of property which could interfere with their rights. We offer advice on the appointment and removal of trustees and identifying the ownership of specific assets. In two recent Supreme Court decisions in Clayton v Clayton the law relating to relationship property and Trusts have been clarified.

Trusts: definitions, types and taxation

Implications If you have a partner, and are considering forming a trust, or if you have an existing trust and enter into a relationship, it is now even more important than ever to ensure that you enter into a satisfactory relationship property agreement.

Conclusion: The Relationship Between Property and Trusts

Which simply means that the trustee holds a position of Trust in relation to the beneficiaries and the trustee must act in the beneficiaries best interest. The latest version of, or will work best if you're after a new browser.

Relationship Property and Trusts

I have used various lawyers at their firm for various businesses I have been involved with and have always had very positive experiences.

Conclusion: The Relationship Between Property and Trusts

Note that the step-up in basis applies to inherited assets in general, not just those that involve a trust. Consistent with the policy of the Act assets that someone ends up with which were acquired independently of the relationship are classified as separate property and are not shared equally. Since many individuals neither set up trusts nor execute wills, state intestate succession laws are an important complement to trust and estate law.

Important Developments: Relationship Property and Family Trusts

The disadvantages of trusts are that they require time and money to create, and they cannot be easily revoked.

Jeremy Sutton

A more complicated example of an implied trust would be the situation in which one party provides money to another for the purchase of property. We also recommend that relationship property agreements are reviewed on a regular basis to ensure that they do provide the protection that has been sought. In some areas, it is possible for older beneficiaries to become trustees.
