Marie, MI; Detroit, MI; Cleveland, OH; Buffalo, NY; and, Toronto, Ontario. If the house had a chimney rather than simply a hole in the roof, bedrooms could be built higher up the house. Her upper works were rebuilt that winter.

Our Evolution

After a lot of time spent researching the most sought after gray paint colors, I headed to my local paint store and had them mix 8 different grays. It leans more towards a warm gray. Mindful Gray has just enough depth and very similar to Dorian Gray.

The role of the kitchen The USA was the major influence on British kitchens in the 50s. They are the very essence of Olde England, pretty black and white dwellings with great character and centuries of history steeped in their walls.

Art Show

Hundreds of thousands of homes had been destroyed by bombing during the Second World War, sparking a building boom in the late 40s and 50s.

Homes Through The Ages

After 10 years of learning our vision and goals are now much clearer. Bigger houses no longer required servants' quarters in the wake of World War I when domestic staff had moved into factory work.

The industrial revolution brought with it mass manufacturing and meant that many more people could afford to buy their own homes, or upgrade them more often, especially in the late 1800s and early 1900s. In dining rooms, richer hues were used. This is probably because of the cool undertones.

Our Evolution

Here are the 8 we put on our white bedroom walls so that we could get the best results: As you know, paint always changes color throughout the day depending on the lighting. Repose Gray is a very well-known paint color and for good reason! The dining room is now virtually non-existent in many homes, replaced by open-plan living. Our Micro Climate The emerging wine region of Georgian Bay is a unique micro climate! I remember needing another gallon to finish a room, came home after getting a new can mixed, and it was a shade off.
