Time to stop our electronic waste being dumped on the developing world

We attach great importance to providing trade-related capacity-building for developing countries, including African countries, least-developed countries, landlocked developing countries, small island developing states and middle-income countries, including for the promotion of regional economic integration and interconnectivity. Many developing nations have as few as one optometrist for every million of the population.

Our Approaches

Indicators are being developed to assist this work. These can support the transition to the SDGs and build on existing planning instruments, such as national development and sustainable development strategies, as appropriate. They are integrated and indivisible and balance the three dimensions of sustainable development.

Developing Our World : Who We Are : Board & Staff

Is the number of deaths rising or falling? The Centre maintains an active research programme and has had several studies that it has been involved with published in peer-reviewed journals. The major problem to overcome is a lack of personnel to fit them.

Problems of Development Today

Such reviews should draw on contributions from indigenous peoples, civil society, the private sector and other stakeholders, in line with national circumstances, policies and priorities. Some have promoted gender inequity, stigma, gender-based violence, and harmful traditional practices.

Time to stop our electronic waste being dumped on the developing world

Millions have already engaged with, and will own, this Agenda. Self-adjustable glasses using the self-refraction technique have previously been deployed in field trials to over 30,000 people through both NFED an adult literacy program of the Ministry of Education in Ghana and the US military's Humanitarian and Civic Assistance HCA programmes since 2000. And on the Daily Show! It also seeks to strengthen universal peace in larger freedom.

Our Staff

Equally serious are deficits in the utilization of knowledge by the relatively poor and uneducated populations of the megacities.
