In view of the deterioration of gold fillings, I have devised an apparatus for annealing gold. These experiments prove conclusively that co-agulants will penetrate the putrescent mass of a root-canal, but do not prove, to my mind, that albumin as such is here present. The first forms of animal life consist of animated drops of jelly-like proto-plasm; the drop moves about by being able to project any portion of the body — as with the motion of straightening a finger — and then following with the rest of its mass until it again assumes a globular form.

The filling-in is to be done in the usual well-known manner, only that after the filling subsequent heating should be avoided, as aluminum by itself, owing to its high specific heat, retains the absorbed heat for a long time.

Then, if the inclination or talent for original work be inherent in the student, he will receive a foundation upon which he may build without the handicap of having been taught a science as applied to an art other than that for which he is preparing himself. With a mass of modeling composition an impression is secured of the Spence metal cast from which may be obtained at any time an additional one.

By sealing these agents in extracted teeth with the cementum removed and embedded in plaster, it has been shown also that they penetrate the entire tubular structure. There also existed the hope that China would regain at least a breathing space through Japan becoming embroiled with the U.
