Translating Maya Hieroglyphs

The explicit text predicts what that result will be. Depending on context, the ji3 and ji4 signs can even be abbreviated to one single u-shaped element in a collocation ch'a-ji-lu on many small mold-made disk-shaped bottles, e.

The Forms of Glyph X of the Lunar Series

The bilingual text on T1-452 R16 also indicates that the Mayan scribes had to learn how to write Olmec inscriptions and translate them into the Mayan language.

Maya Writing System and Hieroglyphic Script

In several Late Classic contexts also T757 BAH can be found employed for ba; ba3, as included here, is an eroded version of T757, employed in a collocation tu-T757 -hi other texts at Chichen provide tu-T501 -hi be - No text at Chichen Itza has yet been identified that includes a sign for be bi - The sign bi2 occurs commonly in the inscriptions, the sign bil occurs only once at Chichen Casa Colorada. The dot represents 1 and the bar represents 5.

NOVA

Secondary centers , , , and other mid-sized cities had their own glyphs but are only rarely mentioned in texts found in the primary regional center, while repeatedly mentioning the regional center in their own texts.
