FURROWED MIDDLEBROW: WORLD WAR II BOOK LIST (1 of 6) (updated 5/15/2016)

Now, believe me, it's not easy narrowing down to five titles here. And of course being a writer and novelist still determined to publish in war time. Our BookSleuth is specially designed for you.

Wartime Chronicle by Vera Brittain

Minimal damage to the book cover eg. But sections 2-5 are an effort to capture the changing mood and tone of writings about the war. Vera Mary Brittain was a British writer and pacifist, best remembered as the author of the best-selling 1933 memoir Testament of Youth, recounting her experiences during World War I and the beginning of her journey towards pacifism.

Vera Brittain's Diary 1939

There are limits to the capacity of a one-bedroom apartment! Her contempt for Jan Struther, author of Mrs. Duff, anyone in the English-speaking world who can read knows about what the Nazis did and how horrible it was, enough with the dramatic language!! Looking at the section headings now, they seem rather neat and logical, but in fact there are complications in dividing books into categories, no matter how you do it. Still I should finish reading what I have first.

FURROWED MIDDLEBROW: THE WORLD WAR II NON

The blitz against London is described as some other bombings. . Nella was writing for Mass Observation, she knew her output would be read by an educated audience with an end in view of gathering information about how the war affected the populace, and their reactions.

Living on her small savings, she supplemented her income by cooking for the local pub and several individuals, helped with the cleaning of the pub's 'rooms to let', and various other activities. Book plate to front paste down. I also loved Hermione Ranfurly.

Wartime Chronicle: Diary, 1935

I've read lots of them but there are many more I haven't read. According to the receipt, I bought Betty's Wartime Diaries 12 years ago. But it was also about the organization of my original list.
