Capital Gains Tax Rates: A Comprehensive Guide

A capital gain is simply the profit made on the sale of an asset.

Capital Gains Tax

Entrepreneurship involves taking risk; but many of these risky investments are not successful, and those that are often begin by running losses for a period before becoming profitable. In fact, long-term capital gains are taxed at either 0%, 15%, or 20%, depending on your income, and the threshold for each rate can change from one year to the next. If you can wait to sell winning investments until a year in which your other income is relatively low, then your total income will let you qualify for lower capital gains tax rates.
