LANCASHIRE EVENING POST ARCHIVE

MAJOR-GENERAL SIR - Bush Fighting.

Art UK

John Fishwick and Sons who operate in Preston are one of the longest continuously family owned transport companies in the UK. No announcement was made in Whitehall or by the Ministry of Defence. Sean Holt from Preston is the Sport England Director for South East England.

Our History

It did, however, return to activity during the 1926 General Strike, and its delegates played an active part during that historic event. The soil of most of the large section from the Ribble to the Mersey is prevailingly a sandy loam, of considerable fertility, but only a small proportion of it is in tillage, and the greater part is laid out in grass. Born in abject poverty in one of the city's worst slums, Pat O'Mara chronicles a tough childhood dominated by a brutal, alcoholic father.

Newspaper Titles

Tom Benson, who was born in Preston in 1932, rose to fame as a boxer and had won a staggering 196 fights and lost just 18 by the end of his ring career. Spies were also keeping a close watch on friends of the Irish Nationalist in London.

Wellcome Library

This is an uncorrected proof copy. It is a sad commentary of a Labour administration that promoted open government before the election but very quickly reversed its position when in power. A series of events emanated from this campaign including an Advice Table in the precinct, an exhibition in County Hall and, courtesy of the TGWU, it took its Advice Table to the Essex County Show.

Preston Stuff

Fr Baines and Fr Page A rather sad tale of unrequited love gives a rare glimpse into the private lives of the well-to-do families living in the Winckley Square district of Preston at the beginning of the last century, revealing the extent to which homosexuality was viewed as unacceptable at that time. This approach recognises that literacy is not an abstract set of skills; it comprises a range of activities that are specific and meaningful in particular times and places, for particular purposes.
