The detailed Orthoceras fossils were carefully exposed from the rock surrounding them. Considered rare in this geologic formation due to the low probability of preservation of the delicate organic material, these wonderful fossil plants evoke the subtropical climate of North America during the Eocene period.

Kootenay National Park British Columbia, Canada Kootenay National Park, a World Heritage Site, is another impressive fossil site located in the Canadian Rockies of British Columbia. Common fossil finds have included the horned Ceratopsians, duck-billed Hadrosaurs, and Therapods, lizard-like carnivorous dinosaurs.

Ichthyodectidae Fish Fossil

Revising a previous hypothesis on the polarity of character transitions within the gnathostome pectoral fin, the current study proposes that the basal gnathostome pectoral fin consisted of a single narrow articulation between the girdle and a single basal element. There were two Nautiloid forms present in the Moroccan Devonian sea.

Placoderm

They flourished worldwide for approximately the next 370 million years and became extinct along with the dinosaurs in the late Cretaceous Period.

Because many crinoids resemble flowers, with their cluster of waving arms atop a long stem, they are sometimes called sea lilies.
