The Haymarket Affair, 1886

One was for Zenkoku Jiren and Jikyō to sink their differences, reunite as a union federation encompassing both anarchist communists and anarchist syndicalists, and engage in united front-style resistance to fascism. He became convinced the system could only be changed by blowing it up — and suddenly realised that explosives were now lying all over Europe and the US, in sheds controlled by ordinary workers. He tells the following story: A greenhorn just off the boat who is walking one day down the street in New York when he sees a black man.
