GOVERNMENT SECURITIES

Government Securities include securities issued by the Government from time to time to raise a loan. In the government securities market, interest rates are set by the government in the form of coupon rates.

Government Securities Market

These enjoy by far the best credit rating, are supposed to be the soundest of all securities and hence called gilt-edged securities. It has also become the accepted industry name for UK government bonds.

Why government securities are called Gilt edged securities?

The term Gilt edged securities is used in India for the Government securities like Central Government loans and State Government loans because they carry no risk similar to that of British Government securities. They have a maturity of less than one year.
