No More: The Battle Against Human Rights Violations

Although people have always criticised governments, it is only in recent decades that they have begun to do so in the distinctive idiom of human rights.

Human Rights and the Death Penalty

In September 2012, a UN investigation that collected responses from a study of North Korean defectors compared life in North Korea to that of the German-run concentration camps in World War II. Left-wing socialism preaches active government intervention to promote total equality. Greta Thunberg is leading the global climate change movement, demanding action for the sake of future generations.

and publications.

Human Rights and the Death Penalty

No attempt is made to identify the violators or the causes of the violations. There is an obvious hypocrisy in accepting human rights in principle and violating human rights
