Difficulties in finding funds to cover routine expenditures, from food to college tuition, strained relationships in families, but also relations of families to neighbors, shops, service providers, and others. In April and May, some 23 million people became unemployed and some 700,000 individuals withdrew from the labor market.

A jobs

They, too, are articulating moral claims against discrimination and are asserting their right to social equality. American families have traditionally institutionalized important sex-role differences between marital partners. If a bold new approach to the problem is not taken, it is likely that blacks will be condemned to unemployment rates that are twice those of whites into the foreseeable future.
