Extensive set of processes broken down into detailed organisational practice statements. The outlines the characteristics of benchmarking in higher education.

QAA benchmarking 'shambles'

Higher education providers may use one or more different types of benchmarking at the same time.

Assessment and Benchmarking

Any use of these in academic review is vitiated by the newly published terms of engagement between reviewers and externals. Where the HES Framework requires external referencing to inform improvement planning and processes, TEQSA will need to be satisfied by examples that this is the case and will continue to be so. Focus is on a team-based self-assessment.

Practical Considerations When Using Benchmarking for Accountability in Higher Education

Statements of good practice provided with a ranking scale.
