Admissions are made without regard to gender, race, ethnicity, sexual preference, disability, or religious affiliation. In terms of actual language proficiency, successful applicants are expected to have a solid foundation in the fundamental structures of Japanese, to have mastered both kana syllabaries, and to be able to read and write approximately 500—700 kanji. In the second half of the program, instruction centers on developing specialized language skills necessary for students to pursue their academic goals or professional work.
