Shawn's interest in dance began in college during his ministry studies in Denver, Colorado; when an attack of diphtheria left him temporarily paralyzed, and dancing became a regular part of his physical therapy. Files pertaining to the Society of Typographical Arts workshop, organized in 1952 and located at the Newberry Library until 1981 to give its member the opportunity to learn to use, design and experiment with type and block prints for letterpress printing. Much of the material documents the Shaw Festival held in Chicago in 1956 and Society activities in the late-1950s.
