The heels will remain on line, the body weight is evenly distributed on both legs. The elbow is held into the side with the upper arm in line with the back. The command of execution is given as the left foot strikes the deck, as this involves a movement to the left.

History of Military Cadences

When acting as instructors, officers and noncommissioned officers go wherever their presence is necessary. One of the primary lessons Marines in drill instructor school learn is that recruits will always be looking at them as they set the example of what it looks like to be squared away. It must be stated prior to the command of execution.
