Abstract Advancements in technology have provided a better understanding of the complex anatomies found in root canal systems. Obturation was done with Endorez Ultradent and warm gutta percha delivered by Obtura Fig. When debridement results in a defect between the bone ends, a bone graft is necessary, as with rigid fixation there is no micromovement to stimulate bone formation.

The process of anachoresis has been especially associated with bacteremias and infective endocarditis. Dental radiographs are needed for the assessment of the crown, pulp chamber, root s and periradicular area of a particular tooth Table 3.
