If you work in finance, consider your own bookkeeping firm. Research some brands to see what they can do for your company. Only focus on it if it would be relevant for the domain of your freelance business.

Sure

However, hiring a growth advisor is probably not as expensive as you might think. If you have some extra money lying around, consider hiring a few team members to streamline your workflow or purchasing some new equipment. Make sure you have a marketing plan in effect so you can track leads, close leads, monitor growth, and understand your demographic.
