The Logic of Biblical Creation

Either the origin of things can be understood in terms of continuing natural processes, or they cannot. One thing to keep in mind, each blog is one piece of evidence.

The Logic of Biblical Creation

Answer Logic is the science of deriving truth through the analysis of facts either directly deductively or indirectly inductively. Whether most people believe it or not, the creation account in Genesis is God's record of His creation.

How should a Christian view logic?

In living organisms, true vertical changes go down, not up -- mutations cause deterioration, individuals die, species become extinct. The truth is, most people are not going to be significantly influenced by logic to believe something contrary to their convictions.

The Logic of Biblical Creation

Logic takes given presuppositions, analyzes relationships, compares them with other known factors, and arrives at a conclusion that identifies a previously unknown fact. In all recorded history, extending back nearly five thousand years, no one has ever recorded the natural evolution of any kind of creature living or non-living into a more complex kind. All calculations that purport to give this kind of evidence are based on present natural processes, and, as we have seen, it is not legitimate to project these into the creation period.
