Senior Housing

What people mainly look for in a health system is not health, but social protection in the event of illness; and a national health care system offers, not health, but universal coverage.

Supportive Housing for the Elderly

One subset of the homeless population includes former foster youth. They are doing worse than other young adults across a number of important dimensions.

Supportive Housing for the Elderly

ServiceLink Resource Centers A major partnership between BEAS and local communities is the , a statewide network of community-based resources for seniors, adults living with disabilities and their families. Additionally, we provide services focused on protecting children, the disabled and the elderly from abuse, neglect and exploitation.

What is social policy?

These include journal articles, papers presented at a national symposium, and descriptions of organizations that provide research findings and further information. Living Arrangements for the Elderly-An International Policy Comparison. Australian Social Work, 59 3 , 288-300.

How Social Connections Keep Seniors Healthy

Through integration or coordination of existing aging and disability service systems, ADRC programs raise visibility about the full range of options that are available, provide objective information, advice, counseling and assistance, empower people to make informed decisions about their long term supports, and help people more easily access public and private long term supports and services programs. The development of an 'internal market' in the 1990s was based in the belief that the NHS would be more efficient if it was organised on something more like market principles - not a real 'market', but a quasi-market.
